MESSAGE 1 ALERT

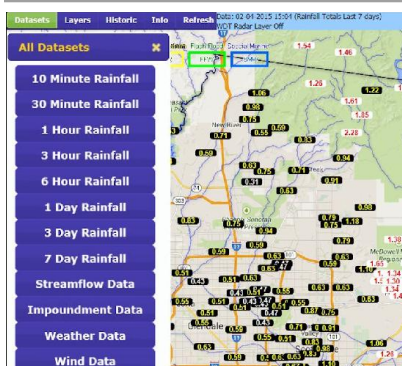

Comments:

A cluster of rapidly developing t-storms is racing northeast into the Phoenix South Forecast Zone. Storms will extend from the Laveen area through portions of South Mountain Village, South Mountain park, and western portions of Ahwatukee before moving into central Phoenix. These storms have the potential to drop a quick 0.25"-0.50" of rain with localized areas seeing upwards of 0.75" should they stall out. Strong winds gusting to 30-40mph and frequent lightning strikes will also accompany stronger cells within the cluster. Normally dry washes may begin to flow in parts of the zone as well as ponding of water on streets/minor street flooding and in low lying areas. We will keep an eye on local washes for any excessive runoff or road flooding and further updates will be issued if necessary. Message is valid until 8pm MST.
